The Family Practice

The Family Practice provides health care to citizens older than 14 (fourteen). It carries out activities on health promotion through direct and continuous protection of individuals and families. These activities are conducted in outpatient clinics and at patients' homes and they include: health education, ambulatory diagnosis and treatment, control and systematic examinations, working with chronic patients, providing emergency medical care, issuing of health certificates and assessment of work ability.

The Family Practice coordinates its work with all other departments in the Health Centre of Sarajevo Canton and other cantonal health institutions in order to provide more comprehensive and quality health care to the population, as well as with the aim of keeping health records and health statistics.

- The most frequent diseases in primary health care in 2017:

1. Hypertension
2. Acute upper respiratory tract infections
3. Diabetes Mellitus
4. Cystitis and urinary tract infections
